Inhabiting the land

BONNEVILLE

Create. Build. Live.

Some houses are simply built.

Others are truly lived in.

To live in Canada is to adapt to the seasons.

This means welcoming the snow, opening wide to summer,
slowing down in autumn, letting in the low winter light.

Our homes are born of this reality.

A lifestyle designed just for you

Bonneville is a large and commited family that has been serving you for 65 years now, with more than 45,000 projects completed to date, designing down to the smallest detail so you can enjoy every moment to the fullest.

An endless world of customizable possibilities

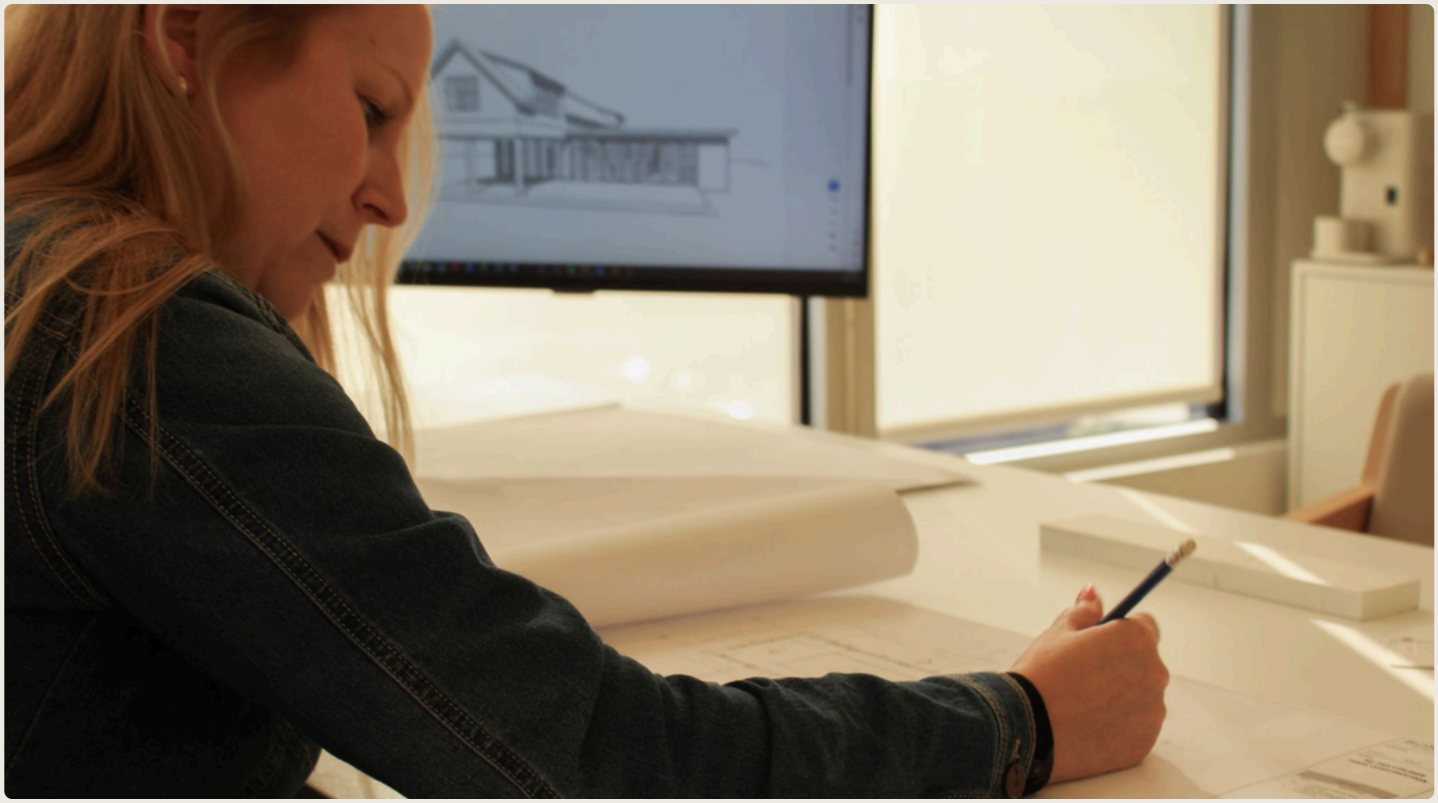

We design architecture thoughtfully crafted for light, climate, and the way you live every day.

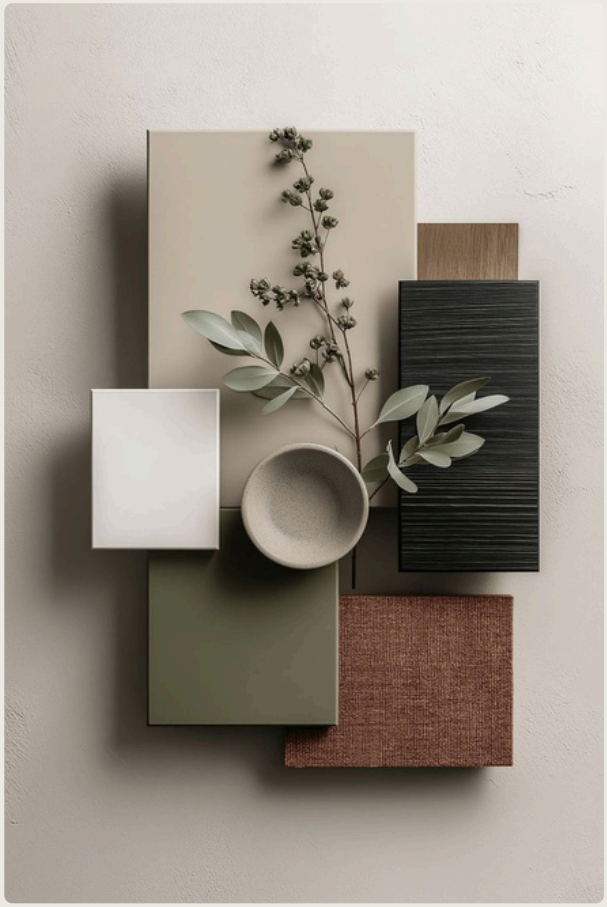

Build your future with Bonneville

We design homes rooted in their landscape, in harmony with their surroundings.

To create is to bring intention to every detail.

Every Bonneville home begins with intention.

A thoughtful balance of aesthetics, functionality, and durability.

Our designers guide you in selecting materials, shaping spaces, and defining the atmosphere, so your home truly reflects your personality and your lifestyle.

Because a truly successful home isn't measured in square feet alone, it's something you feel.

Kim, Senior Designer

Bonneville Architectural Signatures

Some homes stand out at first glance.

At Bonneville, that distinction is born from carefully mastered details:
light streaming through a curtain wall,
the height of a cathedral ceiling,
the warmth of an exposed beam,
the texture of a wood plank ceiling.

Elements designed with intention.
Integrated with precision.
Lived in with emotion.

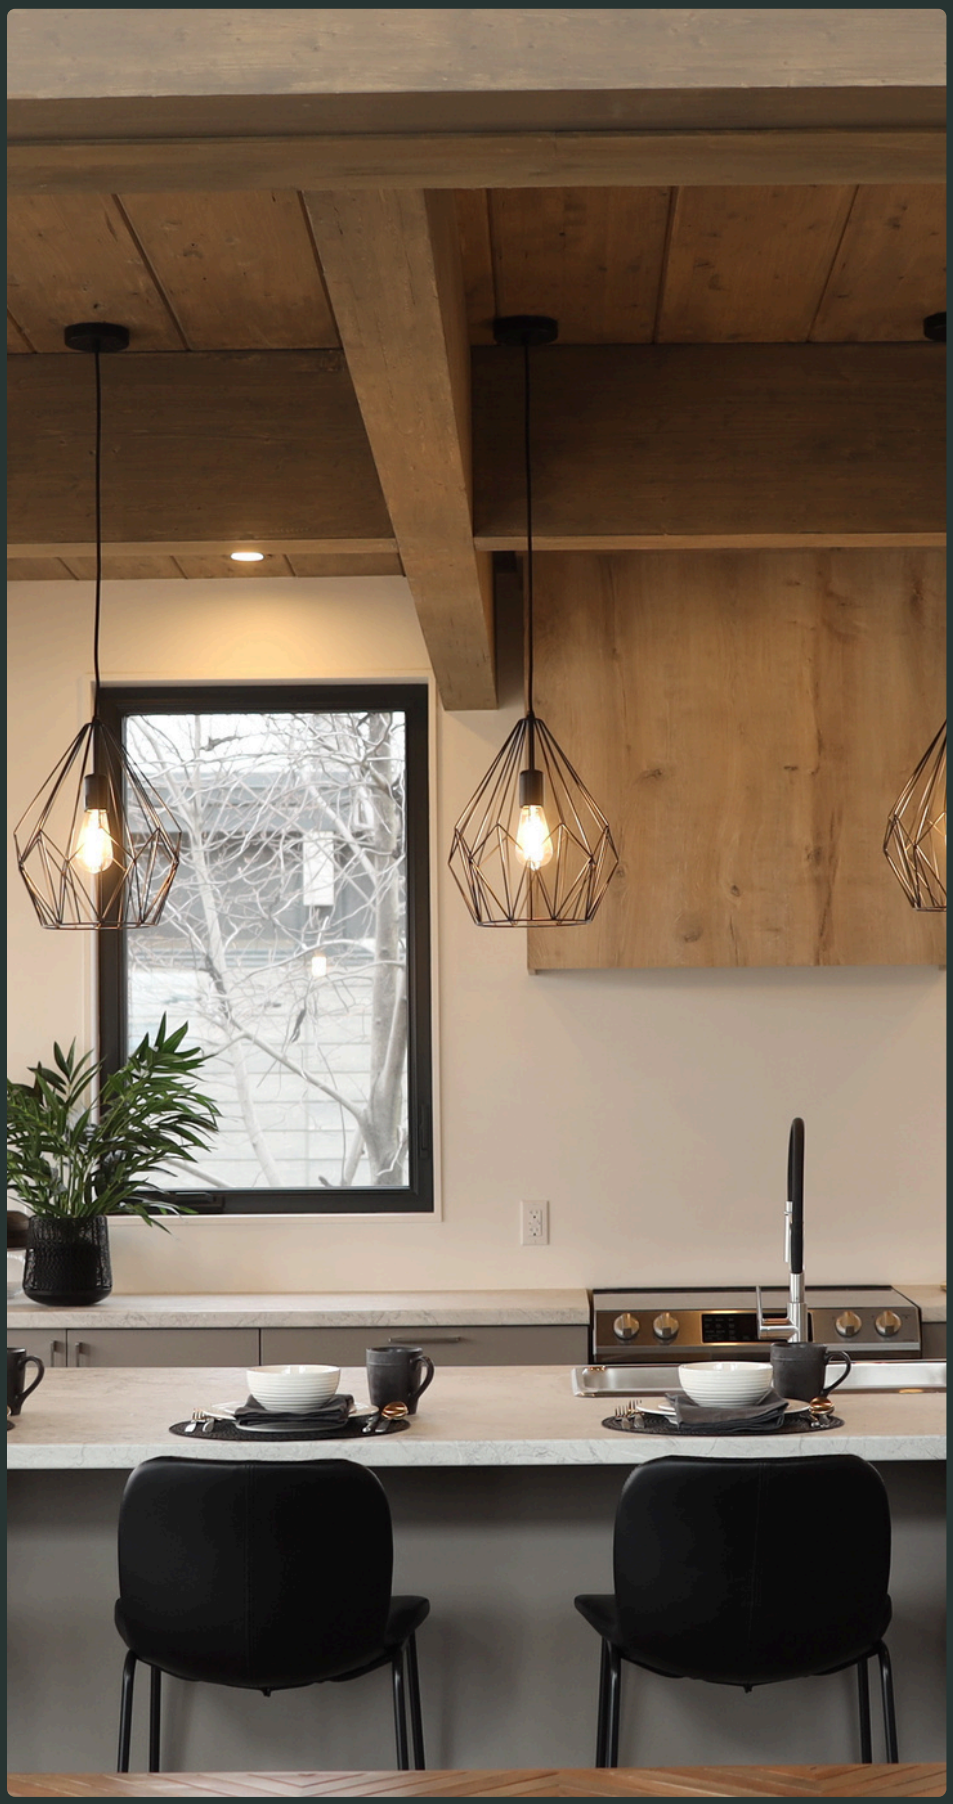

Curtain wall

Opening Architecture to the Landscape

The curtain wall transforms the façade into a natural frame.
It blurs the boundary between indoors and out, allowing light to become a material in its own right.
Each season enters the home.

Every sunrise and sunset becomes part of everyday life.
At Bonneville, the curtain wall is not a dramatic addition, it's a natural extension of the architecture.

Exposed beams express the strength and character of a home. They add depth, authenticity, and warmth, while defining the space

A balance between tradition and modernity. A timeless architectural detail.

Exposed beams

Where Structure Becomes Signature

A wood ceiling adds texture and softness to the overall architecture.
The natural wood absorbs light, creates warmth, and brings an organic dimension to the space.

It transforms a room into an atmosphere.
It makes the architecture feel alive.

Wood plank ceiling

Material That Surrounds

A cathedral ceiling creates an immediate sense of grandeur, while maintaining a warm, human scale.

It opens up the volume, enhances the glazing, and transforms the main living area into a gathering place. Height becomes a sensation.
Space becomes emotion.

Cathedral Ceiling

Elevating Space, Amplifying Light

Testimonials

Marie et Jonathan L.
Montérégie, Quebec

Building with Bonneville was both a reassuring and inspiring experience. From our very first meeting, we felt that our project was truly understood: our land, our budget, but most importantly our lifestyle.

The team transformed our ideas into a bright, functional home that truly reflects who we are. The large windows in the main living area completely change the atmosphere of the house. Natural light fills the space throughout the day and allows us to enjoy the surrounding landscape in every season.

The entire process was clear and well organized from start to finish. We felt supported and guided at every step.

Today, we don't just have a house. We have a place that reflects us and brings us together.

Becoming parents changes the way you think about a home. We weren't just looking for a beautiful model, but for a bright, practical, and adaptable space where our family could grow.

From the very beginning, the Bonneville team understood our reality. The process was clear and reassuring, which meant a lot to us during a time that was already full of changes.

Every detail was thoughtfully designed to make the space functional, fluid, and enjoyable for everyday living.

Today, our home is much more than a successful project. It's where our very first family memories are being made.

After several years living in the city, we were looking for a more peaceful place where we could enjoy nature and host our family. We wanted a bright and comfortable chalet — a place where our children and grandchildren would love to come back, both in summer and winter.

With Bonneville, we found much more than just a model. The team thoughtfully adapted the architecture to our land and the way we live. The cathedral ceiling, exposed beams, and expansive windows give the main living area a warm atmosphere that opens beautifully onto the surrounding landscape.

Every visit becomes a special moment: meals around the large table, quiet mornings surrounded by nature, and the laughter of the little ones filling the house.

Our chalet has become the place where our family comes together.
